DR. SKINNER IMPROVING.

NO CLEW TO THE IDENTITY OF HIS AS-SAILANT.

BURGLARY THEORY ABANDONED-THE SHOOTING GENERALLY REGARDED AS A DELIBERATE

ATTEMPT AT MURDER FOR RE-

VENGE OR MALICE

The theory that Dr. E. D. Skinner was shot by a burgler has been practically abandoned both by the people of Mineola and the two detectives who working on the case, and the theory now generally accepted is that the shooting was the Detectives Sullivan and Downey, of District-Attorney Youngs's staff, spent yesterday morning on the case. They had an hour's conversation with Dr. Skinner in the afternoon, after which they boarded a train for Long Island City. They had a consultation with Mr. Youngs, or one of his assistants, and then returned to Mineola. They afterward went further out on the island. They refused to tell what Dr. Skinner told them, but the impressions prevails that he gave them some points which furnished them with a clew to work upon.

The surgeons and the détectives think the weapon used was not a shotgun, but an old-fashioned muzzle-loading pistol. The fact that the slugs and shot not penetrate further into the flesh than they did is one reason for this conclusion. Had a shot-gun been used the charge of powder must have been very small. The shot was at close range, and who fired it must have been on his kneed near the half-window through which the charge went. This is shown by powder marks upon the

Dr. Skinner says he has no enemies, nor does he

Dr. Skinner says he has no enemies, nor does he call to mind any one who would have cause to injure him. Despite this assurance, the opinion gains ground that some one with a fancied or magnified grievance did the shooting.

The person who called the doctor out of bed was familiar with his habits and business, for he told nim that a patient he had been attending was dying. The window to the office was opened. This window commanded the spot where the doctor had to go to get his medicine case, while there were other windows in the office which could have been opened more easily, but which did not command the position of the case. This case always stood in the one position, it is said, so that at all times, even in the dark, the doctor could lay his hand upon it if called upon to go out at night in a hurry. Almost every one in Mineola knew the position of the case and was familiar with the arrangement of the office.

An examination of the brass slugs taken from the office.

An examination of the brass slugs taken from the doctor's hips show they were cut from a piece of brass with a coldchisel or a hatchet. They are irregular in form, and appear in some instances to have been cut into two parts after being chipped from the main piece.

Dr. Skinner cannot lie on his back, but must either remain flat upon his stomach or else partly on one side. He is resting comfortably, and has little fever.

Ittle fever.

A careful examination has been made of the cases handled by Dr. Skinner since he was elected Coroner, in the hope that some one would be found to have been compromised or injured by one of them, thus giving what might be considered a cause of enmity against the doctor. But in every instance where suspicion was directed to any one there does not appear to be any reason to suppose the person would have been guilty of the shooting.

PUSHED UNDER A MOVING TRAIN

A FIGHT BETWEEN TWO ITALIANS IN HASTINGS ENDS IN THE DEATH OF ONE.

Peter Debato, the Italian station watchman the New-York Central Railroad in Hastings, and Frederick Tator, of Buenavista-ave., Yonkers, quarrelied at the Hastings station at 2 o'clock yesterday morning. Tator wanted to board a freight train to go to Yonkers. Debato told him he could not do so. The two men had some words, and finally came to blows. Tator was the stronger and he pushed Debato. The watchman fell under the freight train, which was then moving, and both of his legs were cut off. The struggle between Debato and Tator was witnessed by Donian Philips, an Italian friend of Debato. He informed the train hands, and they storged the train, and Debato was placed aboard and taken to St. Joseph's Hospital in Yonkers. He died there soon after being admitted.

Tator was locked up in the Hastings station, on a charge of manslaughter.

Coroner Miles was sent for, and one report received by him was that the men quarrelled over the possession of a lantern. Coroner Miles learned that Debato and Tator had not been friendly of late. Tator, who is also an Italian, was employed on the road as a watchman.

Debato was single, and lived at No. 22 Main-st. Hastings. Tator says he had no intention of killing Debato. He says he merely shoved him away, and that he had no idea he would fall under the freight train. could not do so. The two men had some words

TO PROTECT HER PROPERTY.

MRS. MARY A. WRIGHT SEEKS AN INJUNCTION AGAINST THE WESTCHESTER ELECTRIC RAILROAD COMPANY.

Argument was set down for yesterday before Jusstrain the Westchester Electric Railroad Company from building a trolley line in front of her property on the Pelham Road, otherwise known as the Cedar Road, in New-Rochelle, Westchester County. Mrs. Wright owns property on both sides of the road from Drake-ave, to the Neptune Dock Road, with the exception of a small strip of about forty feet frontage. There used to be a horsecar line along the road, but its operation was discontinued a long time ago. Now the Westchester Electric Railroad Company has bought the franchise of the horsecar line and started to build a trolley road there.

Mrs. Wright asserts that the Westchester Electric Railroad Company has not got the necessary consents to the change of motive power from horses to electricity, and she asks for an injunction to prevent the construction of the road.

On the application of John J. Wells, counsel for the railroad company, the motion was adjourned until next Wednesday, the company agreeing in the mean time not to build any more of its road.

END TO RATE-CUTTING ON COAL.

IT IS HOPED THAT THE COAL ROADS HAVE COME TO SOME EFFECTUAL UNDERSTANDING.

The anthracite coal situation appears to have been improved by the recent meeting of the presidents of the various railroads, in spite of the fact that no definite action was announced at the time. Within the last few days there have been several informal conferences between the officials. As a result, the rumor already in circulation that there will be a curtailment of production in August has been confirmed. It is now stated that the number of tons for next month will be restricted to $,500,000 tons, which is a hundred thousand tons less than tons, which is a hundred thousand tons less than the allowance for July, and a decrease from the August allowance of recent years.

In view of the fact that the stocks on hand both in the West and at tidewater are unusually large, it is not believed that any cutting of rates is to be considered. If further cutting were indulged in it might result in auction sales of anthracite, which would tend to cause a general demoralization. As a matter of fact, it was reported yesterday that already all the companies, with one exception, had followed the Lackawanna's example, and the price at Chicago had been put up to $25. From the present outlook, there seems little excuse for depression over the future of the business or of the market values of the coal stocks.

STEPS TAKEN TO APPREHEND JERNEGAN. Newburyport, Mass., July 29.-President Ryan, of the Electrolytic Marine Salts Company, who had an appointment at the home of Director A. P. Sawyer to-night, failed to appear. Mr. Sawyer said:

I am now prepared for the worst, but I am loath to believe that the plant is not all right. In case everything does not turn out as represented. I shall place whatever money has come to me through the medium of the company at the disposal of the stockholders. I have never directly advised any one to invest in the stock, leaving it entirely to the judgment of the purchaser, yet I propose to do what is possible to protect the interests of those who have placed money in the

The directors have been active in the matter since suspicion appeared that something was wrong. Steps have been taken to apprehend P. F. Jernegan, the inventor of the secret process, and general manager, when he arrives at Havre. We expect that whatever money or bonds he has with him will be secured. In addition, there is a sum on deposit in a Boston bank. Should events prove that fraud has been perpetrated, restitution will be made as far as possible.

This boat was built with a view to taking advantage of the great possibilities of health and enjoyment afforded by the harbor of New-York and the Sound and rivers adjacent. She can go through the Erie Canai to the great lakes, and so be used for cruising on the lakes, the St. Lawrence and among the Thousand Islands. The Loudoun is 100 feet long, 17 feet beam and draws 55 feet of water. She has a speed of from 3 to 10 miles an hour, and, having a freeboard of 4 feet, she can go for short cruises in good weather at sea. The general arrangements are such that more room is available than on yachts of twice her size. There are four large staterooms, all fitted with beds instead of berths, a large dressing-room, a bathroom, a tollet-room and a saloon into which opens the large winding stairway, which is one of the striking features of the boat. Back of this is a large storeroom and butler's pantry, kitchen and icchouse, and back of this the machinery and quarters for five men. On top of the house there is an open promenade deck $5 feet long by 17 feet wide, covered with a double awning, the lower one being dark blue to guard against the glare of hot days.

SHIPPING NEWS.

The Town Board has decided to mount the old town cannon, purchased thirty years ago, at the entrance of the harbor. Bonnefoy's Point, where the Huguenots are supposed to have landed, will probably be selected as the site.

At a meeting of the Town Board held on Thursday night J. Addison Young, its counsel, gave an opinion that the recent appointment of George E. Lambden for assessor is not legal. Mr. Lambden was appointed by three of the members who supposed they constituted a quorum, but the Supreme Court has held that Augustine Smith was a regularly elected member at that time, and Mr. Young says that this makes the appointment void. Mr. Dillon, president of the Board, said yesterday that another meeting would be held on next Monday night, and that C. Hobart Morgan would probably be appointed.

The village trustees will hold their next meeting on Monday night. The principal question to be considered is the appropriation of $150,000 for street improvements. PORT OF NEW-YORK-FRIDAY. JULY 29, 1898.
